BIOGRAPHY

Growing up in the left field seats of Milwaukee County Stadium, I started my baseball career at age 17 as a member of the Brewers Grounds Crew. I spent six seasons with the Brewers (2000-05), the last three split between the playing field and the press box where I served as the research intern for TV broadcasters Daron Sutton and Bill Schroeder.

In 2006, I began my own play-by-play career among the corn stalks and smoke stacks of Clinton, Iowa. Six years with the LumberKings of the Class-A Midwest League provided me ample opportunity to hone my craft in one of MiLB's smallest towns (and smallest front offices).

In 2012, I made the jump to Triple-A Gwinnett. Over a 14-year career with the International League affiliate of the Atlanta Braves, I have advanced from No. 2 broadcaster to become the team's lead voice in 2021. I also oversee the team's Public Relations and Team Travel.

In 2024, I received the Stripers' "Pillar of the Team" award for front office employee of the year.

PERSONAL

Husband, father of two, avid reader, occasional gamer ... Longtime fan of the Green Bay Packers and Colorado Avalanche ... Love to watch and quote comedy and sci-fi movies (ask me about my collection of Ghostbusters gear) ... Listener of 90's and 2000's alternative rock.
